SUPREME COURT HITS SECURITIES COMMISSION ACT

J. Edward Jones, New York
Promotor, Wins Fight Against Registration

LAW NOT AFFECTED

Permission to Withdraw Certificate Should Have Allowed, Ruling Says

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(UP)—

The Securities and Exchange Commission today lost in the Supreme court its fight with J. Edward Jones, New York promoter, to compel him to appear before it for examination in connection with a security issue he had registered.

The court held that the commission should have permitted Jones to withdraw a registration certificate filed in connection with an issue of oil stock participation certificates.

The SEC had sought to compel him to appear and testify to the truth of certain statements made in the registration certificates.

Entered Federal Court Jones, instead, sought to withdraw the registration. Permission was refused and he brought an action in New York city federal courts to avoid appearing.

By this decision the court upheld Jones' fight without ruling on the constitutionality of the "truth in securities act."

While ruling that Jones should have been allowed to withdraw his application to register his securities, the court held that Jones, in selling securities without a valid registration, was obliged to take his chances of the liability to punishment under the law.

Youth Admits Shooting Girl in Fit of Jealousy

Charles Wilson, 23, of Mansfield, Arrested in Crestline After Firing Bullets Through Window of Rival's Car;
"Couldn't Stand It," Police Are Told

MANSFIELD, April 6.—(UP)—Twenty-three old Charles Wilson confessed in a hysteria of grief today that he killed his socially prominent high school sweetheart when he found her "necking" a rival in a car parked before her home.

The girl, Jean Moorhead, 17, was the daughter of R. E. Moorhead, president of the Moorhead Automobile company.

Wilson collapsed into such a paroxysm of sobs when he was captured in Crestline, O., 12 miles west of Mansfield, that his account of the slaying was almost unintelligible.

"I just meant to scare her," he said. "I didn't mean to kill her. I couldn't stand seeing them there in that car."

Miss Moorhead went to a motion picture show Saturday night with Haskell Smith, 19, brother of Inwood Smith, Ohio State university All-America football star.

She and Wilson had been sweethearts for three years and her date with Smith was one of a very few she had had during that time with anyone else.

Witness Tells Story
Smith said he and Miss Moorhead parked in front of her parents' home at about 11 p. m.

"We sat there quite a while," he said. "I noticed a car up the street but I didn't think anything of it. We were about ready to go in when the car started toward us and Jean said 'oh, here he comes.'"

"When Wilson drew alongside he got out of his car and came over and said to Jean:

"You come with me," Jean refused. He grabbed her arm. She pushed him. Then he pulled a .38.

"I didn't think he was serious. Then Bob Moorhead—that's Jean's kid brother—came along and jumped on Wilson. Wilson threw him to one side. Then Bob started in the house and then the shots started."

Wilson shot five times through a window of Smith's car. Four bullets struck Miss Moorhead. Wilson fled.

"Bob and I took her in the house," Smith said, "but she died right away."

Wilson said he had "watched Jean in that car until I couldn't stand it any longer."

"We had a date Friday," he said, "and we didn't have an argument of any kind. I only intended to scare her but Bob along and we tussled over the gun. Then somehow it went off."

Fled to Crestline
He drove his car half way to Crestline.

Prosecutor Reid to Submit Information to Grand Jurors'
Opening Session

VIOLATION IS CHARGED

Warnings Ignored, Official Says; Ford's Decree in Chillicothe Effective

CHILLICOTHE, April 6.—Grand jury investigation of slot machines was scheduled to open Monday with Prosecuting Attorney Lester S. Reid on the offensive.

The official intends to call attention of the jurors to reports of devices being operated in violation of the law, and contrary to a removal order issued by Sheriff Joe Vincent. "The return of indictments for such violations seems to be the only effective way to stop the slot machines," the prosecutor declared.

"I have repeatedly notified law enforcement officers to remove the slot devices in the county but according to reports the machines are still in operation," he said.

"Powerless to Act"
Mr. Reid announced that in the absence of complaints being filed or arrests made he feels powerless to act.

"I will ask the grand jury to investigate," he stated, "under a broad power given them in the court's charge to investigate any law violation which comes to their attention."

The Ohio law makes it a misdemeanor to keep or exhibit for gain a gambling device or machine, and provides a penalty of $50 to $500 or 10 to 90 days in jail, or both.

Mayor James E. Ford is strictly enforcing his decree that no devices of any kind will be permitted in Chillicothe.

Mayor Graham Launches "Buy a Brick" Campaign to Finance Corner Design

Mayor W. J. Graham's "buy a brick" campaign for the installation of a historical design in the paving at the Court and Main-st intersection was officially opened Monday morning.

Shipments of 4,000 light buff bricks from Tonarto, O., ordered by Mayor Graham, are expected here Tuesday or Wednesday.

The bricks, delivered cost five cents each. Persons wishing to purchase a brick, or any number they desire may leave their donations at the mayor's office, the Betz restaurant, Caddy Miller's hat shop, The Herald office, Joseph's clothing store and Crist's department store.

School children, members of all civic, fraternal and social organizations will be asked to "buy a brick."

Judges Meet Tonight
Judges recently appointed by Mayor Graham to select a suitable design will meet in the council chamber at 7:30 p. m. Monday to consider the plans submitted. The person submitting the design approved by the judges will receive a $5 prize in The Herald's contest. Forty designs have been filed.

The bricks selected by Mayor Graham and approved by county, city and WPA engineers are the same as used around the new Supreme Court building in Washington, D. C., and the new Federal building in St. Louis, Mo.

Clarence Francis, Pickaway-co conservation officer, purchased the first brick late Saturday at the mayor's office. At noon Monday more than 20 persons had made donations. Since the campaign is open to children and adults, Mayor Graham said the amounts of contributions would not be announced. Residents may donate any amount they wish.

More Bricks Arrive
Two carloads of red brick for the Court-st paving job arrived Monday morning, WPA officials announced, but unloading was delayed because of the rain. When weather permits, the intersection will be laid with red bricks. The design will then be marked off and the buff bricks installed and tarred.

Engineers roughly estimated 4,000 bricks would be needed for nearly any type of a design. If sufficient bricks are left over a suggestion has been made to Mayor Graham to use them for marking off pedestrian lanes.

Mayor Graham and Charles Caskey, safety director, visited the Toronto plant last week and obtained samples for the consideration of engineers.

DAMAGE IN TWO FIRES TO REACH $6,000 AMOUNT

Cargo on Way to Eshelman
Plant Lost; Mrs. Moore's
Tenant House Burns

Two disastrous fires, one resulting in loss of $5,000 when flames enveloped a tractor-trailer and destroyed cargo of the J. W. Eshelman & Son Co., and the other a loss of $900 when the 4-roomed tenant house on the Howard Moore farm, northwest of Circleville, was leveled, occurred during the week-end.

The tractor-trailer fire took place at midnight Saturday on Route 22, one mile east of the county line in Fairfield-co.

The fire started when a strap broke on an auxiliary gasoline tank. Sparks were generated when the tank scraped over the highway, igniting the tank. The entire outfit then caught fire.

25,000 Bags, Oil Lost
John Zug of Lancaster, Pa., driver, escaped uninjured. The trailer was loaded with about 25,000 bags and about 15 drums of cod liver oil used in preparation of feed at the local mill.

The tenant-house blaze was discovered about 11:30 a. m. Sunday by Gideon Eccard, tenant, in a partition between the first and second floors. A defective flue connected with a heating stove, started the fire.

Mr. Eccard fought the fire with pails of water while his wife summoned George Eitel, who lives nearby. Mr. Eitel ran to the home with a garden hose but found it too short to reach the fire. The home was piped with city water but the men were unable to enter the upstairs room with water because of the severe heat and smoke.

Furniture Removed
With the assistance of Howard Stevenson, who was driving by and stopped to help, practically all of the furniture in the downstairs was removed.

The family's clothing, kept in the upstairs room, was destroyed. Mr. and Mrs. Eccard have one daughter, Virginia, 17 months. They moved to the home just three weeks ago. Mr. Eccard is employed by Mr. Eitel.

Property loss was estimated by Mrs. Moore at $800 of which $500 is covered by insurance. Mr. Eccard estimated his loss on furniture and other household articles at $100. It was not insured.

Mrs. Moore plans to rebuild in the near future. The tenant house was built about ten years ago. The Circleville fire department was notified but was unable to reach.

SUPREME COURT HITS SECURITIES COMMISSION ACT

J. Edward Jones, New York Promotor, Wins Fight Against Registration

Permission to Withdraw Certificate Should Have Allowed, Ruling Says

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(UP)—The Securities and Exchange Commission today lost in the Supreme court its fight with J. Edward Jones, New York promotor, to compel him to appear before it for examination in connection with a security issue he had registered.

The court held that the commission should have permitted Jones to withdraw a registration certificate filed in connection with an issue of oil stock participation certificates.

The SEC had sought to compel him to appear and testify to the truth of certain statements made in the registration certificates.

Entered Federal Court

Jones, instead, sought to withdraw the registration. Permission has refused and he brought an action in New York city federal courts to avoid appearing.

By this decision the court upheld Jones' fight without ruling on the constitutionality of the "truth in securities" act.

While ruling that Jones should have been allowed to withdraw his application to register his securities, the court held that Jones, in selling securities without a valid registration, was obliged to take his chances of the liability to punishment under the law.

Military Academy, Woman's School in Center of Tornado District

ATLANTA, Ga., April 6.

(UP)—Storms of tornadoic intensity lashed five southern states today, spreading death and destruction over an extensive area.

There were 100 known dead in the adjacent states of Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Arkansas, with the town of Tupelo, Miss., bearing the brunt with 79 known dead.

Another storm which ripped through the college town of Gainesville, Ga., seat of Riverside Military Academy and Brenau Woman's college, approximated a major catastrophe.

Estimates reach 1,000 First unofficial estimates of the dead at Gainesville ranged upwards to 1,000. Property damage was figured at $5,000,000.

The known dead by towns:

Tupelo, Miss. 79
Columbia, Tenn. 6
Grenada, Miss. 5
Red Bay, Ala. 4
Booneville, Miss. 4
La Crosse, Ark. 1
Melbourne, Ark. 1

Extent of the loss of life at Gainesville was not immediately ascertainable. The storm struck there at 8:45 a. m., shattering communications.

Fires broke out in most of the towns affected, adding further hazards to already chaotic conditions, necessitating the calling out of national guardsmen.

TUPELO, Miss., April 6.—(UP)—The known death toll of the tornado which last night demolished two-thirds of this city of 10,000 persons, and ripped through several other sections of Mississippi, Alabama and Arkansas, reached 82 today. Sixty-six known dead were counted here after daylight accelerated rescue work. The city had been in darkness, and without water, since the tornado struck shortly before 9 p. m. last night.

Columbia, Tenn., was the next hardest hit, with 6 dead. Red Bay, Ala., and Booneville, Miss., counted four each, with LaCrosse, Ark., and Melbourne, Ark., adding one each.

Forty-eight of those dead were tentatively identified. In addition there were ten white persons and

HEAVY RAIN IS BLAMED

Big Bomber Hits Blue Ridge
Mountain After Being Blown
Off Course

FREDERICKSBURGH, Pa.,
April 6—(UP)—The bodies of five
aviators, charred beyond
recognition, were removed today
from the wreckage of their two-
engine bomber that crashed last night.

Army officers from the Middletown, Pa., field listed the dead as:
Lieut. Stetson Brown, St. Johns-
burg, Va.; Cadet Paul Anspaugh, Cleveland, O.; Private Yost, Pittsburgh; Staff Sgt. Endy, Potts-
town, Pa.; and Private Metz, Chambersburg, Pa.

Records at Middletown and Langley Field, Va., to which the bomber was enroute via Washington from Pottstown, did not reveal
the first names of Metz, Yost and Endy.

Serial Number Checked
Officers who arrived at the scene of the crash identified the plane as the army bomber B-6A by
the serial number on the engine.
The remainder of the plane was a
mass of twisted and charred
wreckage.

The fliers were on a routine
training cruise.
Lieut. Brown had piloted the plane from Cleveland and had stopped
at Pottstown to pick up Endy,
who was visiting his wife. Endy,
officers said, was the only one of the men married.

After leaving Pottstown the plane ran into heavy rain and was driven 60 miles off its course. Officers said it crashed into the side
of a Blue Ridge mountain between 8:30 and 9 p. m., an hour or more
after leaving Pottstown.

An investigation will be undertaken immediately by army officers stationed at Middletown, it was said. Failure of the ship to report by radio after it apparently was driven from its course led to
the belief its radio may have failed.

the fertilizer sales program. In addition to his college training, Wertman has been a practical
farmer, farming his home place
in Washington-twip since graduation.

John Potts, Columbus, sales representative of Swift & Co. in making the announcement of this agency said: "There is no organization better equipped to realize
economical factors in the manufacture of fertilizers and quality fertilizer applications to suit the needs of soil requirements than is
the local organization manned by
H. S. Lewis, former County Agent,
versed in soil types and soil requirements and his assistant manager,
Mr. Wertman, who has also techni-

HAY TUFT FOUND IN COURT STREET IN CEMENT BLOCK

A tuft of alfalfa hay, at least 25
years old, was uncovered Saturday afternoon by WPA workers in
a block of concrete removed from the old interurban track base at Court and Watt-sts.

The hay was still green and one
of the workers explained "it looks
just the same as if it had been picked off a doodle." Workmen believed it fell from a hay wagon
while the concrete was being installed.

Mystery surrounding a low place
in the street base in front of The Herald office was solved by Howard Sweetman, county engineer.

Approximately 30 years ago
when a storm sewer was built in Court-st., workmen uncovered
timbers of an old bridge. This bridge, Mr. Sweetman explained,
was over a ditch that existed many years ago. It drained the district surrounding the M. E. church on E. Main-st and emptied into Hargus creek.

The timbers were found between five and six feet underground. The filled-in ditch, settling in the old
ditch, caused the street depression.

DEATH ESTIMATE REACHES 1,000; FIVE STATES HIT

Eight negroes who had not been identified.

Toll May Reach 100
Private estimates indicated the final death toll would be close to 100. Approximately 250 to 300
were injured.

National guardsmen hastily
mobilized from all of northern Mississippi took iron command of
this wrecked and suffering city.
Infantrymen with bayoneted rifles
patrolled the ruins with orders to shoot looters.

One thousand guardsmen were
expected to be here by mid-morning and Adj. Gen. J. A. O'Keefe
was en route here from Jackson,
the capital, to take command.

The city was without light. The telephone system had been so hard hit it was practically non-existent. Every public building left standing had been converted into
an emergency hospital and was jammed with injured. Scores of injured had been hauled over gravel
roads to nearby towns by special train from Memphis brought emergency hospital equipment, medical supplies, doctors, surgeons and nurses.

Scores of rescue parties, lighted
by lanterns and flash lights,
moved through the devastated sections, comprising two-thirds of this city of 6,000 population. They reported that one residential section, Willis Heights, had been demolished utterly, without one building left standing. Elsewhere
the storm had cut a path ranging
from 200 to 1,000 yards wide.

Estimates Differ
The United Press correspondents
estimated that the total dead
would reach 75, the injured 250,
but Clyde Smith, head of one rescue party, estimated the dead at 125, while E. R. Christoph, head of a Tupelo electrical firm, placed it
at between 300 and 500.

Two fires raged in Tupelo at 5
a. m., adding to the horrors left
by a wind that leveled a path 250
yards wide through the city's most crowded residential district.

Rescue parties returning to the business district, which suffered
comparatively little damage, reported finding bodies piled up on street corners. The power plant
had failed and the rescue workers
searched the ruins with hand torches and lanterns.

The gravel roads leading into Tupelo were jammed with ambulances and private cars taking the

been converted into emergency

Plane Crashes Near Fredricksburg, Pa.; All Charred Beyond Recognition

HEAVY RAIN IS BLAMED

Big Bomber Hits Blue Ridge Mountain After Being Blown Off Course

FREDRICKSBURG, Pa., April 6—(UP)—The bodies of five army aviators, charred beyond recognition, were removed today from the wreckage of their two-motored bomber that crashed last night.

Army officers from the Middletown, Pa., field listed the dead as: Lieut. Stetson Brown, St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Cadet Paul Anspaugh, Cleveland, O.; Private Yost, Pittsburgh; Staff Sgt. Endy, Pottstown, Pa.; and Private Metz, Chambersburg, Pa.

Records at Middletown and Langley Field, Va., to which the bomber was enroute via Washington from Pottstown, did not reveal the first names of Metz, Yost and Endy.

Serial Number Checked

Officers who arrived at the scene of the crash identified the plane as the army bomber B-6A by the serial number on the engine. The remainder of the plane was a mass of twisted and charred wreckage.

The fliers were on a routine training cruise. Lieut. Brown had piloted the plane from Cleveland and had stopped at Pottstown to pick up Endy, who was visiting his wife. Endy, officers said, was the only one of the men married.

After leaving Pottstown the plane ran into heavy rain and was driven 60 miles off its course. Officers said it crashed into the side of a Blue Ridge mountain between 8:30 and 9 p. m., an hour or more after leaving Pottstown.

An investigation will be undertaken immediately by army officers stationed at Middletown, it was said. Failure of the ship to report by radio after it apparently was driven from its course led to the belief its radio may have failed.

HAY TUFT FOUND IN COURT STREET IN CEMENT BLOCK

A tuft of alfalfa hay, at least 25 years old, was uncovered Saturday afternoon by WPA workers in a block of concrete removed from the old interurban track base at Court and Watt-sts.

The hay was still green and one of the workers explained "it looks just the same as if it had been picked off a doodle." Workmen believed it fell from a hay wagon while the concrete was being installed.

Mystery surrounding a low place in the street base in front of The Herald office was solved by Howard Sweetman, county engineer. Approximately 30 years ago when a storm sewer was built in Court-st., workmen uncovered timbers of an old bridge. This bridge, Mr. Sweetman explained, was over a ditch that existed many years ago. It drained the district surrounding the M. E. church on E. Main-st and emptied into Hargus creek.

The timbers were found between five and six feet underground. The filled-in ditch, settling in the old ditch, caused the street depression.

ROAD HEARINGS OPEN THURSDAY

State Seeks to Transfer Five Highways to System

Hearings will be held in the commissioners' office Thursday for the proposed transfer of five county roads to the state highway system. The hearings will begin at 9 a. m. and continue until 2 p. m. Roads included in the plans are: Harrisburg-Commercial Point, South Bloomfield-Five Points, Ashville-Lockbourne; Williamsport-Chillicothe, and Logan Elm-Kingsdon.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Girl Scout troop No. 4 met in regular session Friday in the Presbyterian church basement. After the business, patrol corners were held. The names of patrols are Leap Year Pals, Cardinals, Lone Star, and Scouties.

A number of girls passed some of their second class requirements. After a lively game, the troop adjourned.

The next meeting will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday, April 11 at the home of the captain.

Toll May Reach 100
Private estimates indicated the final death toll would be close to 100. Approximately 250 to 300 were injured.

National guardsmen hastily mobilized from all of northern Mississippi took iron command of this wrecked and suffering city. Infantrymen with bayoneted rifles patrolled the ruins with orders to shoot looters.

One thousand guardsmen were expected to be here by mid-morning and Adj. Gen. J. A. O'Keefe was en route here from Jackson, the capital, to take command.

The city was without light. The telephone system had been so hard hit it was practically nonexistent. Every public building left standing had been converted into an emergency hospital and was jammed with injured. Scores of injured had been hauled over gravel roads to nearby towns. A special train from Memphis brought emergency hospital equipment, medical supplies, doctors, surgeons and nurses.

Scores of rescue parties, lighted by lanterns and flash lights, moved through the devastated sections, comprising two-thirds of this city of 6,000 population. They reported that one residential section, Willis Heights, had been demolished utterly, without one building left standing. Elsewhere the storm had cut a path ranging from 200 to 1,000 yards wide.

Estimates Differ

The United Press correspondents estimated that the total dead would reach 75, the injured 250, but Clyde Smith, head of one rescue party, estimated the dead at 125, while E. R. Chisholm, head of a Tupelo electrical firm, placed it at between 300 and 500.

Two fires raged in Tupelo at 5 a. m., adding to the horrors left by a wind that leveled a path 250 yards wide through the city's most crowded residential district.

Rescue parties returning to the business district, which suffered comparatively little damage, reported finding bodies piled up on street corners. The power plant had failed and the rescue workers searched the ruins with hand torches and lanterns.

The gravel roads leading into Tupelo were jammed with ambulances and private cars taking the

REMEMBER WHEN?

Dedication exercises were held for the Pickaway-twp school building.

Pickaway-twp building was dedicated on Oct. 31, 1913 and more than 600 persons attended the ceremony.

Speakers for the occasion were Frank W. Miller, state superintendent of education, F. B. Pearson of O. S. U., and H. P. Folsom, Circleville. Rev. G. J. Troutman gave the invocation.

The school building, exclusive of the grounds, cost about $35,000. E. L. Daley was superintendent of the school at the time of the dedication and members of the board of education were: Burr Rader, president, Dennis Phillips, Isaac Morris and Henry Calvert.

injured out and bringing in rescue parties from Memphis, 95 miles away, and from New Albany, Pontotoc, and other nearby communities. Practically every public building left standing in Tupelo—the court house, the city hall, hotels and even private homes had been converted into emergency hospitals. Every available physician and nurse in northeast Mississippi and in Memphis had been rushed to the scene.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Joe Penner is back on the screen, again with Jack Oakie but minus his famous duck. The new Penner picture, "Collegiate," which also has Ned Sparks, Lynne Overman and lovely Frances Langford in the cast, opened yesterday at the Cliftona Theatre.

WHY DON'T YOU INSTALL A 'PHONE? YOU NEED IT!

Instead of "Wanna Buy a Duck?" and "Woe is me!" as his catch-words, Penner screams "Policeman! Policeman!" at the least provocation in his second Paramount production. It is a swell musical, crammed with original comedy situations, sparkling gags, plenty of music by that unbeatable combination, Gordon and Revel, and legions of beautiful girls.

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE... SMOKE CAMELS

SCIENTIST. Otis Barton goes down 3000 feet into the ocean depths in the "bathysphere." He says: "Camels make my food taste better and help it digest."

FARMER. John Kirby enjoys Camels best of all at meals: "Smoking Camels helps a man digest his dinner better. I get a 'lift' with a Camel."

STEEL WORKER. "I have to eat quick," says Harry Fisher, who works high in the air on narrow beams. "A Camel helps my digestion."

PARACHUTE JUMPER. Joe Crane is a hearty eater. "It's just natural for me to turn to Camels for digestion's sake," says Mr. Crane.

TRACK CHAMPION. Johnny Follows, long-distance record holder. He says: "I heartily enjoy a good meal. Camels stimulate digestion and a sense of well-being."

WINNING PITCHER. Tommy Bridges, of the World-Champion Tigers, says: "I like to smoke my Camels, particularly at meals. They help my digestion."

TENNIS CHAMPION. Stamina depends on good digestion. Petite Mrs. Ethel Arnold, whose lightning speed carried her to fame, says: "I smoke Camels and enjoy food more."

BIG-GAME HUNTER. "Camels never upset my nerves," says Frank Buck, wild-animal snarer. "And they are a lightful help in promoting digestion."

Science and everyday experience agree that Camels pleasantly promote good digestion

People in every walk of life get "keyed up." The constant hurry and mental strain—the worry and tension—tend to slow down the flow of digestive fluids. Camels act as a release from this strain on digestion. Scientific experiments definitely confirm the fact that smoking Camels promotes good digestion. Camels restore and increase the natural flow of the digestive fluids. Enjoy Camels...for digestion's sake...for their cheery "lift"...for supreme smoking pleasure. Camels set you right! They never tire your taste or get on your nerves.

EXPLORERS. Mr. and Mrs. La Varre. He says: "Camels make any meal taste better and digest easier." She adds: "Camels appeal to a woman's taste."

BILLIARD CHAMP. "I found that smoking Camels is a special pleasure and a real aid to digestion," says the veteran Willie Hoppe.

AERIALIST. Vera Kimris, star of "Jumbo," says: "Thanks to Camels, I get added enjoyment out of my food. I like Camel's milder flavor."

WORLD-SERIES HERO. "Goose" Goslin, says a ballplayer has to watch digestion like a hawk. He adds: "Smoking Camels stimulates digestion."

SPEED KING. The winner of the Indianapolis Classic, Killy Petillo, says: "Camels lift the spot and go a long way in keeping my digestion in good shape."

RUDE AWAKENING

THE TOWNSEND idea totters. Dis-
sentiment has broken its leadership and the
loose methods of administration disclosed
at the outset of the Congressional investigation have forced Dr. Townsend into hurried and drastic changes affecting management and the system of compensation. He will drop his own name from the organization's payroll, but will support himself
from the earnings of The Townsend National Weekly, the official organ of the old age pension scheme.

It is plain that these efforts are born of
a desperate determination to stem the tide
of doubt, but they more likely signalize the beginning of the end of this alluring but fantastic proposal. Dr. Townsend's tentative shifting from the proposed 2 per cent
transaction tax to tax-exempt bonds for raising the pension funds is further confession of weakness.

Whether it comes now or later, the complete denouement will be a bitter disappointment for the millions of aged who were led "to listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope." There can be only pity felt for them in the inevitable
disillusionment. They are the unfortunate victims of demagoguery to which
the minds of people have always been peculiarly receptive in times of stress and uncertainty. There is nothing exceptional in the phenomenon.

WRITING A LETTER

ALL the world likes to receive letters
and almost as unanimously dreads
writing them. Letter writing would be a lost art but for lovers, dutiful relations and
the availability of stenographers.

So rare a bird is the habitual letter writer that persons who write to the newspapers are looked upon by their contemporaries
as cranks or eccentrics. And yet there are letter-writers who derive from this recreation other pleasure than that from
seeing their thoughts and names in print.

One of this latter school writes:
"I have all my life made a hobby of
writing letters — I get the kick out of it
that others get from bridge, golf, billiards,
etc. It is a pleasant and refreshing recreation. And what is more mentally stimulating than letter-writing? Some sage said
that letter-writing makes a full man."

Letter writers are unpopular for the reason
that letters require answering, yet
popular for the reason that people like to receive personal messages.

Daily Washington
Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S DIPLOMACY

Mrs. Roosevelt caused great consternation to the French Government the other day.

In her daily column, written shortly after Hitler had remilitarized the Rhineland,
she discussed the moves for peaceable settlement of the matter and said:

"No one denies that the Versailles Treaty
was unjust in many ways and that revisions should be made. It is quite evident,
however, that Germany has ignored the agreements under the Locarno Pacts, but it seems more profitable to talk this over
than to fight it out again to an unsatisfactory finish and to have another peace
built on revenge and fears."

Since bitter opposition to treaty revision
is the keynote of the French policy toward Germany, the French Embassy, horrified,
cabled the exact text to the French Foreign Office in Paris.

To what extent was Mrs. Roosevelt speaking for herself? To what extent was
she voicing the views of her husband?
That is the burning question which neither
the Embassy nor the Foreign Office yet has been able to answer.

FAR EAST

The inside of the Japanese-Russian row, according to confidential cables received
here, is that it springs from the same
cause as the revolt of the young Army
officers in Tokyo last month.

The younger military demand war with Russia. They have provoked attacks on the Mongol border without orders from or the knowledge of Tokyo.

Even many of the older officers maintain that war with Russia has been postponed too long, that every month of delay
sees the Red Army stronger, more difficult to conquer.

The Japanese prefer to have war break
first in Europe, so Russia will be occupied
on both fronts. But failing this, the younger generation is willing to take on the Soviets single-handed.

This is why trouble in the Far East is so
responsive to trouble in the Mediterranean
or the Rhineland.

SELL MACHINE TO ARGENTINA?

WASHINGTON — The Rust Brothers,
inventors of the revolutionary cotton picking machine, have refused to sell one of their machines to the Argentine Government.

It had been ordered by Governor Cas-
tells of the Chaco Province, which is speeding cotton cultivation in competition with the United States.

The Rust Brothers have been willing to
forgo profits on their invention in order
that it may not help competition abroad,
also may not throw too many Southern
tenant farmers out of work.

NOTE — Argentine cotton fields' chief
need is labor or labor-saving machinery.

Adding up all the mileage reported
gained by Italy's invaders since last Fall,
Ethiopia has been conquered three times.

Hitler says Germany never retreats. This is the first intimation we have had that the Hindenburg line is still being held.

THE CAMDEN RUBY MURDER

BY ADAM BLISS

COPYRIGHT—RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Margalo Younger, an actress, is found mysteriously dead in the home
of Dow Van Every, a collector of rare jewels, shortly after Van Every
has recounted the gruesome history of the famous Camden ruby to the
actress, whom he had just met, and Gary Maughan, an acquaintance.
She had been wearing the huge ruby
during the historical episode against
the wishes of her husband, Dow Van Every, the jewel as a "murder
stone." The doctor calls the police
when he finds it a case of murder,
and explains the actress died from a
sharp needle-like instrument found at the base of the brain. Detective Keyes begins questioning Van Every
and Maughan, the only others in the room at the time of Margalo's murder, when Joyce, Van Every's young
niece, who lives with him, enters.
Laura Randall, elderly companion to Joyce, is brought in for questioning.
Boon, the Japanese servant, tells of a
Mr. Barrimore calling to see Van Every, in his absence during the evening, on the morning business.
Maughan, determined to help solve
the murder, departs for Margalo's
apartment to talk with her maid.
Margalo's maid tells Maughan that one of the dead woman's most frequent callers has been Roy Barri-
more.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 13

"CAN YOU remember what night
that Miss Younger and Mr. Barri-
more talked about a ruby?" I asked the maid of the dead actress.

"Must have been lately," said Mrs.
Peoples. "And it was one night when
Mr. Barrimore had brought her home. I remember now. It was two nights ago. They talked a while in here, and I came in with some hot chocolate. Miss Younger always likes a cup before she goes to bed."

"Do you always wait up for her?"
"Not always, only when she tells me to. She told me not to tonight,
but I did anyway—for a while at least until I fell asleep."

"What was said about the ruby
that night—two nights ago?"

"Not much. I only caught the tail end of it. Miss Younger was asking Mr. Barrimore to describe the ruby to her, and then I handed her the chocolate, and they were silent until I left the room."

"Miss Younger said nothing more
about it to you?"

"Nothing."

"The police will be very sorry, I suppose, Mrs. Peoples. The word
Van Every's when I left. One thing
before I go. Did Miss Younger have any enemies?"

"Not that I know of."

"Did she get any letters which might have been threats?"

"Not that I know of. A telegram came for her in her absence, of course. I haven't opened it."

"Remember I'll be seeing you at noon in my office," he said as the lift
whizzed him and three of his fellows
up out of my sight.

Things were a little straighter in my head as I walked away from the big white stone building. Roy Barri-
more was assuming gigantic proportions. Also, a ruby.

But first I had better go home, get a bath, and an hour's sleep. I had two appointments: The one of which Keyes had just reminded me,

and a date at the Ritz with Joyce

at 5.

And when I reached the desk at the hotel, I was informed by the clerk that a Mr. Barrimore had phoned several times during the evening. The last message he had left was to the effect that he would call on me at 11.

I waited until nearly 12 for Barri-
more, then impatiently started out
for Keyes' office. I had tried to locate Barrimore when he failed to call, but could not find him listed anywhere.

Homer Keyes was not in when I arrived, but his stenographer ushered
me into his private office, and I sat,
looking out the window, for perhaps
a half hour before he came.

That he was worn out I could readily see. From his looks he had not been able to snatch a moment of sleep. His eyes, though, reflected none of his fatigue. They were as blue, as stern as ever.

"I've been waiting," I said, taking another cigarette. A boy brought in some sandwiches and coffee, and the detective invited me to join him. I refused the sandwiches because I had
just had breakfast, but joined him
in the coffee. Keyes drank his black; three cups of it.

"Haven't had any sleep," he
grumbled, munching a sandwich.

When the tray was carried away,
he took a big cigar from his pocket,
and after I had refused one just like
it, and it into his mouth, with no attempt at a light.

"Now!" He settled himself more
comfortably in his swivel chair.

I waited for what he had to say.
It came soon enough.

"Maughan, I suggest you come clean with me." His eyes sought
mine coldly.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean exactly what I say. Come clean with me. You know more about this than you've said. You know who murdered Margalo Younger."

Then I saw the paper he had brought in with him, and was
now spreading on his desk—the paper
I had avoided buying all morning.
The blatant headlines screamed at
me. I didn't want to see them.
I didn't want to know about them. He took other papers just like it from his pocket, and placed them all together so I could see them. I closed
my eyes to shut out the black type.
Margalo's name, the murder word.

"His voice was ominous.

"Keyes, you know I didn't. At least you should by this time. How,
in the name of Heaven, could I have murdered Margalo Younger?"

"Well, then, who did?"

"I don't know and you don't either."

"Why did you go up to her apartment after you left Van Every's?"

"I went to talk to the maid, Mrs.
Peoples. You know I was a friend
of Miss Younger's."

"Yes, I know, but you're not a detective and you have no right to meddle."

"If I choose to meddle, it's my own business. The thing happened
under my nose, and I intend to find out who did it."

"Noble of you, Maughan," he laughed sarcastically, "but that's my job."

"Mine, too, Keyes, now."

"Still you are keeping something
from me. I feel it. I want to know what it is."

"I'm keeping nothing."

How Certain Drugs Affect Control of Nerves

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

PREVIOUS articles this week have discussed the control which is exercised over our bodies by the spinal column, the autonomic nervous system. By receiving impulses from various
organs and by sending
reflex impulses back, it keeps
all of our bodily
functions in
good working
order.

The question
which the thoughtful
student natu-
rally asks is,
what regulates
the regulator? We know that it is extremely sensitive to different chemicals and medicines; also to the secretions of the ductless glands. It is probably the latter which maintain the dead level of control. The action
of some of these medicines is well known to everyone.

The action of nicotine produces a
form of shock, with pallor, coldness
of the skin, clammy perspiration,
nausea, slighting respiration, which indicates that the blood vessels in the internal area have dilated so that
most of the blood is stagnated there.
The novice, with his first pipe or cigar, experiences this syndrome until
he becomes immune to it.

Barbitone Affects Eye
Another medicine, the action of

which is familiar, is atropine or belladonna. The size of the pupil of the eye is dependent upon the action of the autonomic nervous system, and atropine, either locally in the eye or
taken by mouth, will cause dilatation
of the pupil, paralyzing the fibers
which normally contract it.

Five thousand years ago the Chinese emperor, Shen Nung, tasted a plant known as "ma huang," and
decided from his experience that it was good for fever and sweating. It was introduced into western medicine only a few years ago by two
medical missionaries, and is now
used extensively—although not for fever or sweating—under the name of "ephedrine."

One of the famous historical events
of the world, the death of Socrates,
was induced by conium maculatum,
a paralyzer of the autonomic nervous system. One can still read the history of how Socrates felt the cold
extremities, the getting cold, although his mind was still clear after
he drank the hemlock.

Many drugs which have firmly established their usefulness, such as adrenalin and ergot, have their primary action on this autonomic
nervous system, and more and more
are being discovered and tested in order
to evaluate their usefulness.

RUDE AWAKENING

THE TOWNSEND idea totters. Dissension has broken its leadership and the loose methods of administration disclosed at the outset of the Congressional investigation have forced Dr. Townsend into hurried and drastic changes affecting management and the system of compensation. He will drop his own name from the organization's payroll, but will support himself from the earnings of The Townsend National Weekly, the official organ of the old age pension scheme.

It is plain that these efforts are born of a desperate determination to stem the tide of doubt, but they more likely signalize the beginning of the end of this alluring but fantastic proposal. Dr. Townsend's tentative shifting from the proposed 2 per cent transaction tax to tax-exempt bonds for raising the pension funds is further confession of weakness.

Whether it comes now or later, the complete denouement will be a bitter disappointment for the millions of aged who were led "to listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope." There can be only pity felt for them in the inevitable disillusionment. They are the unfortunate victims of demagoguery to which the minds of people have always been peculiarly receptive in times of stress and uncertainty. There is nothing exceptional in the phenomenon.

WRITING A LETTER

ALL the world likes to receive letters and almost as unanimously dreads writing them. Letter writing would be a lost art but for lovers, dutiful relations and the availability of stenographers.

So rare a bird is the habitual letter writer that persons who write to the newspapers are looked upon by their contemporaries as cranks or eccentrics. And yet there are letter-writers who derive from this recreation other pleasure than that from seeing their thoughts and names in print. One of this latter school writes:

"I have all my life made a hobby of writing letters — I get the kick out of it that others get from bridge, golf, billiards, etc. It is a pleasant and refreshing recreation. And what is more mentally stimulating than letter-writing? Some sage said that letter-writing makes a full man."

Letter writers are unpopular for the reason that letters require answering, yet popular for the reason that people like to receive personal messages.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE are fooling their critics. They are not rushing helter-skelter after every easy scheme. They are not plunging emotionally into a dictatorship. In fact, the American people have become coolly analytical — and that promises well for the future.

Observers have been remarking in wonderment over the collapse of various movements — as well as various political candidates.

Contrary to expectations, politics is not working the people up to a white heat. Politicians may be in a froth, but the majority of people are observing quietly with cold and critical eye.

The question in political camps at the moment is: "How can we arouse the people and keep them aroused?"

It is the queerest campaign year in memory. The critical eye of the voter is unnerving some campaign managers already.

OLD TRICKS

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S DIPLOMACY

Mrs. Roosevelt caused great consternation to the French Government the other day.

In her daily column, written shortly after Hitler had remilitarized the Rhineland, she discussed the moves for peaceable settlement of the matter and said:

"No one denies that the Versailles Treaty was unjust in many ways and that revisions should be made. It is quite evident, however, that Germany has ignored the agreements under the Locarno Pacts, but it seems more profitable to talk this over than to fight it out again to an unsatisfactory finish and to have another peace built on revenge and fears."

Since bitter opposition to treaty revision is the keynote of the French policy toward Germany, the French Embassy, horrified, cabled the exact text to the French Foreign Office in Paris.

To what extent was Mrs. Roosevelt speaking for herself? To what extent was she voicing the views of her husband? That is the burning question which neither the Embassy nor the Foreign Office yet has been able to answer.

FAR EAST

The inside of the Japanese-Russian row, according to confidential cables received here, is that it springs from the same cause as the revolt of the young Army officers in Tokyo last month.

The younger military demand war with Russia. They have provoked attacks on the Mongol border without orders from or the knowledge of Tokyo.

Even many of the older officers maintain that war with Russia has been postponed too long, that every month of delay sees the Red Army stronger, more difficult to conquer.

The Japanese prefer to have war break first in Europe, so Russia will be occupied on both fronts. But failing this, the younger generation is willing to take on the Soviets single-handed.

This is why trouble in the Far East is so responsive to trouble in the Mediterranean or the Rhineland.

SELL MACHINE TO ARGENTINA?

WASHINGTON — The Rust Brothers, inventors of the revolutionary cotton picking machine, have refused to sell one of their machines to the Argentine Government.

It had been ordered by Governor Castells of the Chaco Province, which is speeding cotton cultivation in competition with the United States.

The Rust Brothers have been willing to forgo profits on their invention in order that it may not help competition abroad, also may not throw too many Southern tenant farmers out of work.

NOTE — Argentine cotton fields' chief need is labor or labor-saving machinery.

Adding up all the mileage reported gained by Italy's invaders since last Fall, Ethiopia has been conquered three times.

Hitler says Germany never retreats. This is the first intimation we have had that the Hindenburg line is still being held.

Mrs. Peoples and I glanced at each other, then perused the note again. She was the first to speak. "You're going to ask me when this came. It was about 1:30, for I thought it was Miss Younger at the door, and that she had forgotten her key. I took the telegram, signed for it, and laid it there on the tray. Then I went back to my room to wait some more. In a while I was sleepy so I dozed off."

One-thirty. After the murder had been committed. The murderer had probably dashed off the note on a typewriter, found a telegram envelope, and a boy to send the message. I picked up the envelope and glanced at it. Yes, it was a regulation envelope, but the name and address were pasted inside the small, thin, transparent opening. This made it seem like a telegram. Indeed, I myself had been shocked when I had opened it. I expected to see a bit of yellow paper in my hand. Instead my fingers had come away with a slip of white paper, folded neatly under the short, pert message.

I felt inside to be sure the address was pasted on. It was. The envelope must have been taken apart, and then put together again. It was addressed to "Miss Margalo Younger, 1009 Fifth Avenue, New York City."

"A regular boy brought it, at least I think he was. He had a cap on, with a sign. They usually telephone messages here, but I supposed that at night, they sent telegrams instead. At least that's what I thought," Mrs. Peoples was saying.

I put the envelope on the tray, with the note beside it. The police would want it. A good clue. Then bidding Mrs. Peoples goodby, I left. She wanted to go to the undertaking establishment, but I persuaded her to stay until the police came.

The elevator boy came after a short wait, and I asked him whether he had at any time in the evening brought up a messenger boy to Miss Younger's apartment. He said he had not. "No telegrams had come in the night," I believed him. Whoever the messenger boy was, I knew now that he had climbed 10 flights of stairs to get to Margalo's apartment. The boy claimed, too, that no one could get in the apartment house at night after 12, except by ringing the front doorbell. Except folk who lived there. They had keys.

The bell in the elevator buzzed, and a red light showed on the board. Someone was below. When we reached the street floor, Keys was standing pressing the bell. His eyebrows went up as he saw me.

"You, Maughan?" he said rather sarcastically.

"Yes, I've been doing a little work on my own. There's a good clue waiting for you upstairs."

"Remember I'll be seeing you at noon in my office," he said as the lift whizzed him and three of his fellows up out of my sight.

Things were a little straighter in my head as I walked away from the big white stone building. Roy Barrimore was assuming gigantic proportions. Also the ruby.

Penner to Peddle Ducks With Olsen and Shutta

Star of Screen and Stage on Saturday Night Program; Eddie Green to Return for Part of Vallee Hour

Although they are not in the market for livestock, George Olsen and Ethel Shutta will entertain Joe Penner, veteran duck salesman and popular comedian, on the "Celebrity Night" program, Saturday, April 11. The band-leader host and his wife say that they will be polite but firm with Penner. They have already told him that they do not wish to interrupt the nationwide broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 10:30 p. m. (EST), to sign a bill of sale for Joe's waddling friend, "Goo Goo." Penner, after all these futile years, is nevertheless determined on a sale.

Eddie Green Returns

Eddie Green, the Negro comic who has entertained Rudy Vallee's Variety Hour audiences with his characterizations of Jonah and Napoleon in recent weeks, will be back on the program in another sketch by John Tucker Battle on Thursday April 9. This time he will throw all his histrionic talent into a portrayal of John Alden as he conducts an embarrassed suit for the hand of the famous Pricilla on behalf of Captain Miles Standish.

The comedy team of Tom Howard and George Shelton, veterans of the Vallee program, will also be guests in the broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 8:00 p. m. (EST). Of all the guest stars who have been on this show since it first went on the air, Howard and Shelton hold the record for number of appearances. Their humorous "arguments" are one of the Variety Hour's most famous traditions.

Rudy himself left by plane for a short vacation in Havana immediately after last Thursday's program, but he will return to New York before this next broadcast and will be on hand at the microphone as master of ceremonies and conductor.

NOTES: Wayne King is a certified public accountant. . . Vivian Fridell, starred in that new daily network serial, "Backstage Wife", is 23 and has been on the air for five years. . . That Army Day program of the National Radio Forum looks interesting. . . It will feature Congressman John McSwain of South Carolina and General Main Craig, chief of staff United States Army. . . Cheerful note: The return of "Halo Stran-juh" Schlepperman (Sam Hearn) to the Jack Benny program. . . The cheering of Southampton crowds, farewell speeches of officials, salutes of surrounding watercraft and the goody toots of her whistles will be heard over American networks when the R.M.S. Queen Mary begins her maiden voyage for these shores, May 27. . . Most fan letter writers who jot notes to the Easy Aces express disbelief that Jane Ace is really that dumb, according to Goodman Ace. . . "Let Yourself Go" and Township workers added 179 new members to the Farm Bureau during the annual membership drive, S. E. Beers, Scioto-twp, chairman of the campaign, told directors at their regular meeting Saturday night.

The drive was inaugurated in January but due to weather conditions many of the workers were unable to cover their districts, delaying a final report. Reports of two townships have not been fully completed.

The Farm Bureau has a total of 607 members.

Chairmen appointed at township meetings in the new soil conservation program will meet Thursday at 1:30 p. m. in the Farm Bureau offices to name officers and appoint a committee of three to direct the county program.

Meetings in Muhlenberg, Scioto, Circleville, Walnut, Washington and Wayne-twps will be held this week.

RAIN TO HINDER GOLF TOURNEY

Several Holes on Augusta Course Under Water

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 6.—(UP)—The rain-marred Augusta National golf championship was down for completion today on a course which may have to be revised because of flood conditions.

Not until first blows are struck will players or officials know which holes are to be used and which omitted. There was high probability that there will be no tee shots shied at the short 12th, and no irons or woods started from the 13th fairway. Greens at both these holes are on the far side of the valley which normally contains a small creek.

Last night the creek was a young river and natives said the bridges leading to the 12th and 13th greens will be under water today. If predictions are correct the full 18 holes on both the third and fourth rounds will be completed by playing holes Nos. 1 and 2 a second time each round.

The rain which began when stoutest Saturday night celebrants were taking to bed, continued almost without interruption past nightfall Sunday night. The temperature then began to fall.

Warner has been a football coach for 42 years.
